

Introduction

An evaluation of Informed Dining in Health Care was conducted in November 2017 to measure the impact of the program on British Columbians. A representative sample of the general population completed an online survey. Key findings from this survey are presented below.

Program awareness

Compared to those who did not, British Columbians who ate in a hospital in the past year were:

- ✓ more likely to be aware of Informed Dining
- ✓ more likely to look at nutrition information

Nutrition information

Interest in nutrition information

British Columbians who look at nutrition information at least some of the time when eating out	9 in 10
Those who do so at least half of the time	4 in 10
British Columbians who show interest in using nutrition information	1 in 2
British Columbians who were likely to check the nutrition information the next time they visit a participating outlet	6 in 10
Those who said they definitely would	1 in 4
